The microRNA miR-17-92 is aberrantly overexpressed in various types of cancers, including breast cancer. In particular, miR-17-92 targets the PTEN tumor suppressor and the insulin receptor and, hence, has been proposed to mediate resistance to targeted therapies. We analyzed whether miR-17-92 modulates sensitivity of HER2+ breast cancer cells to HER2-targeting therapies. MiR-17-92 expression levels were determined in cell lines that had been engineered to overexpress HER2 and that were sensitive or resistant to lapatinib and trastuzumab. The functional
