Seviye (in Urdu: سیوی کھوی) is an Urdu novel written by M. Arshad and published by Anjuman Taraqqi-i-Urdu in 1969. It was translated to many languages, including English, Turkish, Spanish, Russian, Persian, Turkish, Bengali and French. It is the second novel in Arshad's Maktaba series after Pyaar Ka Punchnama. Plot The novel narrates the story of Seviye, the protagonist. Her mother was a Kashmiri Pashtun, and her father was a Kashmiri Pandit. Her real name was Seviya Qureshi, but she changed it to Seviye for the sake of anonymity and protection. The novel is about the duality of Seviye's life and identity. Her husband, who is a Kashmiri Pandit, wants to convert Seviye to Islam so that she can get away from her past and forget it. Seviye is raised in Kashmir and the novel focuses on the complexities of her childhood. Adaptations The novel has been adapted into a TV drama titled Seviye. It was first telecast in 1984 by Pakistan Television, followed by other channels. It was remade in Hindi as Ek Nanhi (1988) and in Bengali as Kalma (2002). The original TV series was nominated for many national and international awards.
