Merit badges are the basic units of merit system, the recognition and advancement of achievements. Merit badges are a major component of the Boy Scouts of America (BSA) program, which was developed to instill values in the Scout and to create a learning environment that encourages personal growth and self-reliance. Merit badges are awarded in the United States to youth members of the Boy Scouts of America, and to other youth leaders and adults as a recognition of merit and not for the purpose of awarding badges to youth. The merit badge pamphlet will give you information about how to earn each merit badge. Learn about what it is, how to get started, and information about requirements.
