Q: If these are not my own armors why are they not activated? In Valiance, the Fire Coat, Light Cloak, and Cold Cloak armors all have a note saying "for other armors: activate before worn." They have been crafted to be crafted. Why are they activated, but not worn, but are instead stored in the personal item box? I'm specifically interested in deleting the app from a device, not the iOS App Store. My app has been removed from an iOS device and I am trying to figure out what I need to do to remove it from the iOS App Store, so that I can continue developing my app. I have a listing on the App Store, but when I go to Update and release it, it still shows that the app has a development provisioning profile attached to it. Is there some way to remove the app from the App Store completely? A: The easiest way to clean up your store listing is to use the "force delete" button on the bottom of the listing. Just like when you force quit the app, the store will show a force delete button for 30 days and then delete the app. -0041){ref-type="ref"}, 42{ref-type="ref"} Although higher rainfall may induce more competition between species or species shifts, the slope of the relationship between precipitation and recruitment was similar across forest types and landscapes (Fig. 4{ref-type="fig"}B). This suggests that in this system, as in most tropical forests (van der Maarel et al., 2009{ref-type="ref"}; Ruiz-Carmona et al., 2016{ref-type="ref"}), recruitment does not depend on precipitation as much as on changes in vegetation due to disturbances and climate change.
