A Romanticcomedy about an Indian stuntman who takes Hollywood by storm but cannot find true love.The overall objective of this research is to examine the relationship between variation in the structure of the genes for the two protein chains of hemoglobin and the variability of their expression, more specifically the pattern of inheritance in a family. Specific objectives are to study: (1) variation in the structural gene of alpha- and beta-globin genes in a family with regular and complete expression of the corresponding chains of hemoglobin, to determine if the alleles involved are identical or non-identical at the molecular level; and (2) the inheritance of alpha- and beta-globin molecules in the heterozygote for Hb S in a family with a regular pattern of expression. An understanding of the structural, as well as non- structural factors which modify the level of expression of the hemoglobin molecules is essential in order to elucidate the causes of the clinical manifestations of sickle cell anemia.At least one episode in the life of the Moon is shrouded in mystery and debate. The Moon has a history filled with fickle light and shadow. Over the years, its surface has been both underwater and exposed to the Sun, etched by wind and ice, craters filled with water and altered by seismic activity. The result has been an ever changing face on the Moon. This is part of an ongoing debate about whether the Moon formed as a globe before or after it collided with the Earth; some think it was dry and another portion of the Moon may even be a gigantic impact crater containing water. A new study says it's possible that parts of the Moon's shell — like the Lascaux Crater — formed before a global collision between the Earth and a Mars-sized object knocked a massive amount of debris off the surface. A 1.5-mile-wide piece of Moon that looks like an impact crater, Lascaux Crater is believed to be a remnant of the collision that would have sent up a blizzard of rubble from the surface of the Moon, taking it back to a state like it was billions of years ago. Image: NASA/JPL-Caltech/GSFC/DLR/MPS/PSL/ASU In Lascaux Crater, the transition from a lunar surface to a subterranean one is abrupt. The 70-million-year-old flood plain is less than a mile wide and up to 10 miles across. 3e33713323
