Also, [list] from have some old rusty barbed wire and would like to use it. Where I live, they throw it onto the side of the road. I would like to turn it into a table. I plan on using a piece of 1" (I think it's 1") 2x12 as a top and drilling some holes for supports so the wire will stand up. That's it. Any ideas of possible things I can attach to the wire so it will look like a barbed wire rail table? I have some old rusty barbed wire and would like to use it. up. That's it. Any ideas of possible things I can attach to the wire so it will look like a barbed wire rail table? Here's one I made about 10 years ago. It was made with 2"x4" stock. I also had another rack done where one end was the top. For both, I used the same t-posts, dowels and welded steel plates. I used 4"x4" stock for the support posts. I'll try and make one for you here today and get back to you. I'll take a pic and post it to the sidebar. They are great. When I built my first two boards, I used a combination of 2x4s and 2x6s. They are heavy and work great for both the deck and railings. I made my second set of railings a year ago, and I'm still
