Vector (or _raster_) _Graphics_* Vector graphics technology replaces the raster (bitmap) method of picture storage and display for computer graphics. Vector graphics is basically a set of lines, curves, and other geometric shapes (two-dimensional) or points (three-dimensional) that can be easily scaled or rotated to make the desired image. Photoshop's creator, Craig Smith, points out that vector graphics "draws on a completely different level" than raster graphics. Vector graphics can be embedded in a raster file, unlike raster graphics, which can't. The _curve tool_ offers the same types of options and is used to make objects _curve_ or bend and shape areas of a drawing. But unlike the rectangle tool, the curves tool can be used to create _curves_ and sketches. Curve making is vital to producing effective, creative pictures. Photoshop has dozens of tools that you can use to create a variety of effects or adjustments. Adobe calls them filters. Most applications include an image-editing/image-adjusting toolbox. For example, at the top of Figure 8-2 you see tools in Photoshop.

This guide will help you get started on your path to mastering Photoshop: an in-depth and comprehensive journey through the world of Photoshop. We'll start from scratch to help you learn all of the tools in Photoshop, and work our way all the way to expert proficiency. Each of our guides makes a point of having fun while you learn and practising, and you'll see each of the tools you learn in action as we progressively get better at them. Are you ready to get started? To begin, you'll need: Adobe Photoshop (desktop versions are available for both Mac and Windows) A computer with 24GB of RAM (8GB for Windows, 10GB for Mac) A monitor with at least 1920 × 1080 pixels Adobe Elements (desktop and mobile versions are available for both Mac and Windows) A computer with 4GB of RAM (2GB for Mac, 4GB for Windows) A monitor with at least 1280 × 720 pixels That's all the minimum configuration you'll need to get started in Photoshop or Elements. Of course, you might want more, like more RAM. And if you're a student or are considering university or college, you probably want more than one computer. Downloading the software If you have an older version of Photoshop, you might want to update. To check what version you're running, open Photoshop, click on Edit > About, and you should see a message like this: Click on More Info, and you'll see the version you're running like this: This is what you'll have to click next. Windows and Mac When you've decided what version of Photoshop you want to buy, you'll need to make sure that it's compatible with your operating system. Otherwise, you won't be able to access the software you buy. The good news is that Windows and macOS are very similar: if you're running Windows, you can just "upgrade" to macOS (without purchasing a new version of Photoshop), and vice versa. So, once you've decided what version of Photoshop you want to buy, you just need to choose your OS. Australia's Sam Kerr has been banned for three matches over alleged racist comments she made on social media in early March. The FIFA Disciplinary and Ethics Committee have decided the comments made on the Sunrise breakfast show on March 1 were "unprofessional". Kerr accepted a written warning and a ban for a minimum period of one competition, including the AFC Women's Asian Cup. "The representative of Australia showed that her conduct was clearly in breach of the Laws of the Game," said a FIFA statement released on Monday. "She accepted responsibility for her words and actions. Her ban also includes a minimum period of one competition, including the AFC Women's Asian Cup." In her comments on the breakfast show, Kerr made reference to two former teammates, who are both now in the United States. At the time, Kerr said: "It was mostly just words of support for those girls that are dealing with it, and also, also talking about maybe us having the opportunity to win it, so we can sort of be front and centre when we do get the cup." The ban starts from the date of the incident, March 1, and runs until the conclusion of the Asian Cup in December. Along with the suspension, Kerr has been fined A$9,000 (NZ$9,460). She is the third Australian to receive a suspension in the wake of racial abuse allegations following the 2019 World Cup in France and the Asian Cup. Jack Wilshere has been banned for one match and Megan Rapinoe for two matches after both were charged with "racially aggravated public insults". Both are yet to appeal and will miss the June 18 blockbuster between the United States and France at the Tournament of Nations in Sapporo, where Australia will face Nigeria. Australia's captain Sam Kerr has been charged with misconduct for allegedly making comments about two of her former teammates during an interview in March. (File) (Getty Images: Simon Hofert) Australia's Matildas coach Tom Sermanni, who is facing the same ban as Kerr after being charged over his comments, is expected to be found guilty, with a three-match ban ruled out to be a "grossly disproportionate penalty". Sermanni was upset over allegations of racism after being "sternly criticised" by Anzhi Makhachkala.

What's New In Photoshop CC 2015 Version 16?

Vinyl scented candles No matter where you look, everyone is talking about the candle trend. While candles may not seem sexy, they're actually helping businesses and clients discover a whole new world of potential clients. Just because something is different than what we're used to doesn't make it new and modern. It just means it's modern and different. 2 Comments Putting scented candles in your home is like adding your décor to the eau de parfum. It makes your house smell amazing and it feels like home. It's like a little spa experience. But just like putting the right scent in the air will get you noticed, using scented candles can work the same way. It will get you noticed and people will want to know more about you. Candles make a great first impression. They make an attention grabbing statement and when placed strategically they make a huge impact. I'm a huge fan of scented candles and am so excited to tell you guys about a new brand that offers a whole line of scented candles. Coconut Bliss is a small, artisan brand that is led by local real estate agent, Katie Lucas, and the candles are handmade by her grandmother and grandmother's best friend. Coconut Bliss candles are made with hand poured soy wax blended with coconut oil which is perfect for your home because it leaves it natural without a scent. They also offer scented options and a wide variety of colors, sizes and scent options. Our favorite candles we've tried are the "smokey" sugar cookies candle because it has a traditional smell but it's not overpowering. They also have the "dream catcher" candle that is a fragrance you'll feel instantly drawn to. The most interesting part about Coconut Bliss candles is that they are made in small batches right here in Denver. The problem is that supply for these hand poured soy candles is limited due to our short growing season. But that shouldn't keep you from buying them. You can shop on Amazon or even find them in your local boutique or mall. As the weather gets colder, the cozy candle scent and smell is one of the best ways to warm up the home and help you unwind. Are you interested in trying scented candles? I know I am, because they are such a beautiful addition to any home
