All you have to do is create your dream slides for your presentation and present it like no other. ProPresenter offers you a whole world of possibilities and the real power is based on your ability to combine various content in a beautiful fashion. You can combine any number of slides, create a multimedia presentation, build slides on the fly, and even share your presentation over the internet so everyone can see it. ProPresenter is not about how cool this application is but about how professional your presentations will look after using it. It's not so much an app as it is a media center for creating and controlling your presentation while the added content is being displayed. As a result, you can directly manipulate your creation as you go on. While it was created initially as an aid to worship gatherings, this presentation software has developed into a universal solution for use in almost any situation, from simple school projects to more ambitious broadcasts. Crowded but useful interface Now, with most such programs the interface is hard to keep neat and clean. This is the exact situation with ProPresenter. It's not that you'll find it hard to discover whatever options you need, but rather that you have this feeling these options have been scattered all over the place. All the settings are clearly labeled. A search button is visible in the top-right corner of the program window. You have about four or five different panes and the central window detailing your project and its components. Add various drop-down menus to the mix and you've got yourself a real mess going on. Lights, camera, and action This particular application gives the feeling of a filming studio rather than a simple presentation creation program. Aside from the various actions, you can add to your slides and components, timers, and audio inputs, one can intertwine various texts with video content and have these adjusted on the go. If there is one particular thing to appreciate when working with ProPresenter, it's the flexibility you deal with in every little step you take. Preferences are of the most varied kind and include adjustments that generally deal with the resolution of your presentation, groups and services that are involved, devices you work with, network connections, and input adjustments. There are several ways to change the app's behavior towards your audience. Adaptability is yet again something to praise in the case of ProPresenter. User Reviews This program will help you create presentations that can look like professional videos but don't cost a lot of money. It's perfect for any
