Activation ArtCAM 2015

First, install drivers for your printer. If your printer has an Ethernet port, then plug it into the computer that has the printer. If your printer has a serial port, then connect the printer directly to the computer. Next, turn on the printer, connect it to your computer, and then start the printer software. The printer software should scan for a network port or other connection. If it does not find a connection, then you will need to connect to the printer by using a serial connection. Next, you must open the printer software and add the printer by typing the printer name, OSI Layer Number (if available), and/or IP address. If you have not connected to the printer before, you will also have to select the print job that the printer is connected to. After the printer software adds the printer, it will change to the printer's home page. Now, you can start configuring the software for the new printer.
