Q: How to type in Hangul syllables on SoftKeyboard? Google's onboard Korean soft keyboard offers additional functionality like autocomplete, which I use a lot. However, typing in Hangul isn't as easy for me as typing on the US keyboard. Here's an example: I've found that I can use "Alt + Shift", but that doesn't do anything for me. A: These two key-presses should help: Alt+Shift+Spacebar, it opens the option panel. Alt+Spacebar should cycle through options as opposed to spacebar, which initiates the keyboard type. Q: Problem with \foreach I am trying to make a dictionary \foreach with indices and pairs. The first problem is that when I try to input the second argument with curly braces, it isn't right. Taqi Basyuni's Notebook: Eye on one of the U.S.'s most respected and decorated coaches Taqi Basyuni's Notebook: Eye on one of the U.S.'s most respected and decorated coaches WASHINGTON – Peter Harrington is well aware of the historical significance of today's match against Costa Rica and the fact that it could help determine which country is the CONCACAF champion. It's the sixth meeting between the two countries, and the home crowd is eager to see an all-American side look to their backs for inspiration. When asked what he was going to do with the result, Harrington took the opportunity to have a little fun with his answers. After a short international break, the Red Bulls will be back on the field this weekend as the club prepares to host New York Red Bulls II at Red Bull Arena. "New York Red Bulls II have been playing pretty well so far," Harrington said. "They've won both of
