In the first sentence of this document (from the Body Organic Recycling and Landfill Directive from 2000/53/EC), they use the term Stow. For landfills where the aim is the permanent prevention of waste collection, such as 'stowing' landfills, the applicant must demonstrate that: The landfill is closed by means of an impervious, durable and long lasting lining. The landfill has been designed to be resistant to any risks to the environment and safe for the community. What's the technical meaning of the term Stow, do all countries use it? If not, what is it used for, and what are the most common or common non-UK English translations of this term? A: Citations: Sterling Dictionaries Online: stow. verb: To keep (a thing) or other things securely in a place. Merriam-Webster's Online:

located in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, manufactures the world's largest phased array infrared (PAIR) reflector systems which are used in a wide variety of scientific, commercial, and military applications. Until 2005, the company employed approximately 500 people, but due to the reduced demand for larger infrared reflector telescopes, the company was forced to cut down to only 200 employees.
In 2008, Zenith Infrared Systems was a finalist for the Canada's Top 100 Employers Award. Products 09e8f5149f

Each execution environment for the composite application may be identified by a corresponding execution environment identifier, for example, a URL associated with the execution environment. For instance, the first URL (URL 1) represents a first execution environment, and the second URL (URL 2) represents a second execution environment. In this manner, the user is not required to directly select from the groups of the execution environment identifiers, and is not required to directly input each execution environment identifier. Rather, the user is provided with access to the execution environment identifiers, and then selects from the groups of the execution environment identifiers, for example, a check box or other user interface element, to indicate which execution environment is to be used for executing the composite application. In the illustrated embodiment, the groups of execution environment identifiers may be provided through a links list to the user, which in turn may be identified by the user selecting the links list using a pointing device, such as a mouse. The links list may include the first URL (URL 1) and the second URL (URL 2), for example. In this manner, the user is provided with a way to access the execution environment identifiers, but is not required to directly
