Original Effects Creating unique images in Photoshop In this lesson we're going to be looking at the various brushes and vector tools available in Photoshop, and some of the different ways you can use these tools in your design and editing process. We'll also look at some of the Photoshop effects that are included with Photoshop, as well as some of the more common ways you can use them in your design process. In this step, we'll be looking at the different brushes, pens and graphics tools available in Photoshop. This is a fairly basic lesson on using brushes, and I've used a fairly simple and basic example to give you a good understanding of the concept. You can see in this simple example, that we have a Basic Photo layer and a Brush tool, with a black background color. Let's start by removing this black background color. To do this, using the Eraser Tool in the Brush Tool Options, select a color and remove it. Let's try a lighter blue color on the Background layer. Using the Brush Tool and painting on the Background layer, make sure you have the right blend mode. Press and hold the Alt/Option key on your keyboard and then select New Layer. We now have a new layer. You can change the color and blend mode on this new layer using the Brush Tool. You can see that using a lighter blue will prevent the brush tool from filling the layer entirely. Here we have a simple example to show you how to use a brush. Let's move the layer into place and merge the two layers together. We can duplicate the layer and apply some Blur effect on it. To apply an effect, double-click on the layer in the Layers palette. Use the Blur and Sharpen tools as you wish. Let's make sure the layer is saved in a format that Photoshop can read with the Layer > Save for Web & Devices command. Go back to the Layers palette and duplicate the layer. To create a clipping mask, copy the layer and then paste it into a new layer and delete the original layer. Select the new layer and group it. There's a lot to do. Let's start by cloning a layer. To clone a layer, double-click on the layer in the Layers palette. With a new layer selected, use the Brush Tool with a new brush. In this case, we're going to clone the Background layer.

A call from a woman screaming in the background led authorities to the couple in their Englewood home. When cops arrived, the councilman was on top of his wife holding a gun to her head and threatening her with bodily harm. Surveillance cameras captured the photo-op. It was the beginning of the end for Johnson. Although he continues on as a councilman, Johnson was arrested and charged for second-degree burglary with intent to commit assault with a deadly weapon, first-degree criminal trespass and terroristic threats. In addition to Johnson, the woman he tried to threaten, Roy Ellard Jr., was arrested for second-degree burglary and criminal trespass. Ellard was released on a $1,000 bond. Johnson was released on a $200,000 bond. In a criminal affidavit filed with the arrest, Johnson admitted to being a drug dealer and said he had been in town for the last three weeks and had friends in the area.
