A 28-year-old female is in critical condition after she suffered a laceration to her chest during the incident. The police said the suspect, who has been arrested, was able to flee the scene. Watch the latest video at video.foxnews.com image source: CBS image source: CBS While the details of the crime are not yet clear, we still don't know the exact sequence of events that led to the crime, but it seems that the woman was picking up a passenger at a taxi stand and at some point after the ride she stepped out of the car to get some fresh air. The police said that they were able to identify the suspect because of the distinctive bike that was used by the suspect. The suspect fled the scene immediately after the stabbing. The Utility of the Modified Takayasu Classification in the Management of Systemic Vasculitis. The Takayasu disease (TKD) classification, although originally used for Takayasu arteritis (TA), has been modified for systemic vasculitis. The aim of this study was to validate this new TKD classification and assess its prognostic significance in systemic vasculitis. We performed a retrospective cohort study of 1180 patients with vasculitis from a prospectively maintained database at a tertiary care center over a 30-year period. A total of 566 patients with TA were identified and divided into 3 groups based on the 3-class TKD classification: group 1, aortitis; group 2, aortic aneurysm; and group 3, aortic dissection. Three hundred and forty-four patients with non-TA vasculitis (162 with Behçet's disease [BD] and 182 with polyarteritis nodosa [PAN]) were analyzed separately. The incidence of cardiovascular morbidity and mortality in
