You have a business that deals with honey or bees in any way? You will love this screensaver. Do you know someone that is scared to death of bees or wasps? This Screensaver is perfect to scare the heck out of them. Once they see it bee happy!!! In the wild, bees eat flowers. They then find a flower that is covered with bees. The bees stand on the flower, and they eat pollen. When the bee is finished, it flies away. After flying, it will let loose a spray that's made of honey. This is called a bee dance. Once the bee is finished, it lands on a different flower and performs the same dance. So, a bee doesn't know what to do with the flower until it sees someone else land on the flower. When that happens, the bees fly up to the new bee. The new bee then performs the bee dance and the others follow. Bee Dancer Screensaver: When you open this screensaver, you will have to step through a short animated sequence before you will see your bee dance on your desktop. The dance starts slowly, but it picks up speed as the bees dance around your desktop. Once the dances starts, it will continue even when you move the mouse. After the dance finishes, it will clear away and you can see the bee on your desktop. You can click on this bee to stop the dance and to keep it there. What's New In?

For over 1000 years, people have been drinking honey in Europe, the Middle East and North America. Even today, honey is a widely appreciated sweetener. Though honey has been long considered a healthy food, people are still cautious about consuming bee products. The reason? Without bees, not only would a lot of our food be poorer, but also the health of our families. Therefore, it has always been safe to keep bees away from our homes. In the Beech Screensaver, you will discover a different kind of bee. Your desktop is going to be covered by a swarm of beautiful honey bees. The colors and patterns of these bees are beautiful. If you are anything like me, you know exactly what I mean when I say this is one of the most soothing sights I have ever seen. This screensaver will come with 10 different pictures of these beautiful bees, which can be used as still photos or as live wallpaper on your phone or desktop computer. Despite that, you can always customize this screensaver using the included configuration tool. You can even adjust the number of bees per frame and the number of frames. You can even set the speed of the swarm on your desktop. You are sure to enjoy this screensaver. Screenshots: Happy New Year 2010. I hope you all had a wonderful holiday season.
