Q: How to use celery to schedule callbacks I have a task that I want to run at a certain interval. The task gets repeated three times and I want to execute a callback at each interval. I cannot think of a way to easily register a callback to trigger after every 3 tries. My current solution is to store the tries and after every third iteration remove the try from the list @tasks.scheduled_task(every=3) def task(self): iterations = 0 while True: try: [iterations].append(iterations) except Exception as e: print(e) else: break def after_this_try(self,iter): self.iterations.remove(self.iterations.index(iter)) Is there a way to do this that is more elegant? A: Celery is asynchronous, so when you call after_this_try(), it can't do the job of what it is supposed to do, because the iteration has not yet completed. You can use a different scheduler, like crontab which allows you to schedule jobs. Here is an example: from cel
