Detection of antihepatitis E virus (HEV) IgG antibodies by an enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay (ELISA) in serum was performed on 210 patients with various chronic liver diseases and 21 healthy subjects as a control group. The anti-HEV IgG antibodies of patients infected with the hepatitis E virus showed high reactivity in all three phases of the disease (acute, convalescent, and asymptomatic), especially during the acute phase of the disease, and the titers of IgG tended to be higher in the patients with acute infection than in those with chronic infection. Similar titers of IgG antibodies were found in the patients with chronic persistent and with chronic active hepatitis. Our results indicate that the anti-HEV IgG antibodies detected by ELISA are useful for the diagnosis of acute hepatitis E, as well as for the differentiation of acute infection from chronic infection.Welcome to the Insect Wing of Weidner Research: identification and management of insect pests of food and agriculture. I have a question, how to access the Google Plus API, the official website says the and it can be done with Xamarin.Auth as far as I know. However I couldn't find any example to access the API. Anybody can give me a simple example? A: Finally I solve this issue by using the Google Plus API, it's the right way to use the Google Plus API. Step1: Login into Google Plus account, and create a new project with a unique name, that cannot be similar to the original name of your project. Step2: Use the generated Google Plus API key to access the API. Here is my project details, you can check this link : A: Xamarin.Forms has a built-in Dependency service named Xamarin.Auth. You can use it in Xamarin Forms to access Google Plus API. Add the following Nuget package to your project: Install-Package Xamarin.Auth Access Google Plus API: UserInfo userInfo = await DependencyService.Get(). GetAccountAsync(this); public async Task GetAccountAsync(Xamarin.Forms.Forms application, bool remember = true) { return await DependencyService.Get(). 3e33713323
