Password and username for KolibriADB server It is recommended to create a new user account (windows 7) or change the username and password for the kolibriADB server. Having the username and password is necessary for logging in to your KolibriADB server without authenticating every time. If you do not want to create a new user account, you can use the provided uxpasswd program in order to generate an account username and password for your KolibriADB server. The uxpasswd program was created to generate a password that meets the following specifications: - Password must have the following length: 16 characters minimum and 32 characters maximum (the minimum is mandatory, you can not specify a lower length). - Password must have at least one letter and one symbol - Password must contain at least one letter, one number and one symbol (others will be substituted by the alphabet) - Password must start with a letter and a symbol (others will be substituted by the alphabet) Note: if you create a new account, you will have to create a new hostname for your firewall server in order to enable port forwarding. The new hostname for the firewall server must be created with a single word and max 15 characters. The Mask for Windows Server 2003 Version 1.00 release: 03/11/09 First of all: I'm a IT guy. I'm not a Windows programmer. I did the following just to make it easier for my dad to see the content of the.txt file (which is xml format). 1. Copy content of a.txt file to a new.txt file 2. Remove the header (I created a separator so I can copy the header and the content between them) 3. Remove the footer (I created a separator so I can copy the footer and the content between them) 4. Get
