Field of the Invention This invention generally relates to an ink jet recording apparatus. More particularly, this invention relates to an ink jet recording apparatus which can perform printing on both sides of a sheet or recording medium. 2. Description of the Related Art Ink jet recording apparatuses are known which can record an image on one side of a sheet or recording medium by reciprocally scanning a carriage mounting a recording head at a high speed, and also record an image on the other side of the sheet or recording medium by reciprocally scanning the carriage at a high speed. For example, Japanese Laid-Open Patent Application No. 6-256065 discloses a method which comprises feeding a recording medium having front and back surfaces through a double-side printing apparatus having a first and second ink jet heads disposed on opposite sides of a main scanning direction and a sub-scanning direction, and separating the recording medium into first and second parts along the main scanning direction, the first part of the recording medium being printed in the first ink jet head, and the second part being printed in the second ink jet head. The above-mentioned ink jet recording apparatus can also be used as a video printer and facsimile machine. However, in the above-mentioned conventional double-side printing apparatus, it is necessary to ensure that the first and second parts of the sheet or recording medium are kept in separate areas while the sheet or recording medium is printed on both sides. The first and second parts of the sheet or recording medium have previously had some width in order to ensure that the first and second ink jet heads are positioned on opposite sides of the main scanning direction of the sheet or recording medium, and the sheet or recording medium is separated into the first and second parts along the main scanning direction of the sheet or recording medium in the double-side printing apparatus. This means that the sheet or recording medium must be fed, as a whole, out of the double-side printing apparatus after printing on one side. The position of the first and second ink jet heads on the sheet or recording medium is shifted by the width of the first and second parts of the sheet or recording medium. Therefore, the ink landing positions on the first and second parts of the sheet or recording medium may not be kept in the same positions. In other words
