There are plenty of apps like Tasker and Automate for jailbroken iphones, the problem is, they only work for jailbroken devices. My question is: Is there a way to program an app like "Tasker" or "Automate" to react to, say, receiving a position from a GPS location, not only when that app is running in the foreground but also when it's locked to that specific position? A: Found the answer. This app I was looking for is called "Pressure - Setup your HOME Screen". It's absolutely free. Q: npm test exits immediately when running bash commands I use npm test to run my tests, and I noticed that it exits instantly when I run bash commands on the bash environment. For example, I want to run this command in bash: npm start It starts the project on my localhost, and when I run the command npm test to test it, it exits immediately. A: If you run your tests with npm test, the script that executes the command within the Test section of the package.json file won't be executed within a bash shell. I use a separate script to start the server and test my app. That script invokes a Node script that I have named server.js. I do this simply to keep everything outside of the node test script. server.sh: #!/bin/bash node server.js server.js: #!/usr/bin
