Introduction Recently I was able to get my hands on the new Razer Blade Pro, the fastest laptop ever and possibly the fastest gaming notebook. Before I dig deeper, let's take a look at what the Razer Blade Pro offers: Quad-Core Intel i7-4700HQ @ 2.6ghz Processor (8MB Cache, up to 4.2ghz TurboBoost, 3.3 - 4.1ghz base clock) 16GB DDR3 Memory (non-ECC Unbuffered Memory) 1TB Hard Drive (60,000RPM) NVIDIA GeForce GTX 870M (Maxwell) 2GB GDDR5 512GB M.2 PCIe Solid State Drive 16.9" LCD FHD (1920x1080) Razer Chroma Keyboard & Headset Razer GameSense Technology 1.5kg And the Blade Pro ships with a lightning-fast 256GB SSD. That's the type of storage that's fast enough to play most games with the only bottleneck being the graphics card. In my test, I was able to run Batman: Arkham Origins with all settings maxed at 30fps and even with the resolution set to 1920x1080. The game ran with no stutter in fullscreen with the title bar enabled, which is an achievement in and of itself. I would also like to point out the power supply has a whopping 850 watts of power draw, which is respectable considering the fact that the Blade Pro is the only ultra-thin laptop to come with a power brick (take note Apple!). I'll be testing the following titles on the Blade Pro: Batman: Arkham Origins Sleeping Dogs Dirt 3 Unreal Tournament 3 Payday 2 The Witcher 2: Assassins of Kings This review will cover the following topics: General overview Test system configuration Performance Battery life Final thoughts Greetings and welcome to my second Razer Blade Pro review. Last time we reviewed a Razer Blade with a dual core processor, which frankly I found a bit underwhelming. The next generation Razer Blade Pro offers two quad cores and a faster graphics card. The next day I made the decision to buy the Blade Pro and configure it as per the specification I found most attractive, namely the NVIDIA GeForce GTX 870M with 2GB GDDR5. One of the selling points of the

So how can I make this sitemap indexable? A: Have you tried adding the following flags to your value?
