The plant polyphenols apigenin and piceatannol are well-documented inhibitors of mammalian cytochrome P-450. We present evidence that these dietary compounds may improve the hepatic phenotype in the animal model of autosomal dominant polycystic kidney disease (ADPKD). Exposure to apigenin and piceatannol led to a near-complete arrest of kidney cyst growth at doses that were also hepatoprotective. Their effects in the rat model were dose-dependent, and not due to diet, or the presence of a common dietary ingredient, magnesium. We speculate that the ability of apigenin and piceatannol to inhibit cytochrome P-450-dependent drug metabolism may contribute to their hepatoprotective effects.Wojciech Smugański Wojciech Smugański (born 20 March 1971) is a former Polish footballer who played as a goalkeeper.
