The motion capture suits (known as Vicon CX and Vicon ISO) carry sensors to record players' movement, and when combined with data provided by OptiTrack, new levels of ball physics are possible. So for example, while dynamic Fouls can be determined by a player's distance from the ball, in FIFA 22 Vicon CX assists in calculating the distance a ball is dropped by the player and then calculates the precise direction the ball was deflected from the player's body, enabling the development of an effective system that identifies dribbling moves, slicing moves, backsheaths, through balls, off-balance shots and other dribbling moves. The player data collected in real-time enables the player to deliver the ball with the desired characteristics, such as swerve or spin, allowing for a more realistic play experience. The inclusion of this technology marks the first time that FIFA's series of core gameplay systems have been technology-driven, adding to the realism and authenticity of the game. “As the lead producer of FIFA, I’m proud to say that a new generation of soccer player avatars is powering FIFA 22,” said Peter Guber, SVP of Marketing and Business Development, EA SPORTS. “FIFA 22 takes the core gameplay systems introduced in previous FIFA titles and takes it to a whole new level, adding advanced motion capture technology for the most realistic gameplay experience ever in EA SPORTS FIFA. We’re excited to share how the next generation of player avatars and gameplay systems are united to give fans an incredible experience across consoles and mobile.” Named FIFA 22, the game will release worldwide on February 6, with international specific release dates set on a local basis. As announced at EA Play 2018 in Paris, FIFA 22 will be available for PLAYSTATION 4, XBOX ONE and PC. To celebrate the launch of FIFA 22, we’re announcing a series of EA PLAY news and exclusives, including behind-the-scenes interviews with key developers and the announcement of a new FIFA Customization Sweepstakes. FIFA 22 Impressions FIFA 16 is an extremely robust game for them. I like a lot of the little tweaks they made to FIFA 16 and some of their announcements this will going to be much better than FIFA 06 which was FIFA 16's predecessor. We tested FIFA 16 and there's no reference at all to our development team in too. Also, the 2000s development cycle was three years. There's a YouTube clip of someone trying to play online and they play online and it's incredible how buggy it is. The AI is improved somewhat and, for a second time, and pretty well. FIFA, again, is a very solid game. What they did for FIFA 16 was they not only improved the game technically but also the fact they're pushing it to newer areas and giving older areas new life and being shoddy in places like that that's a good business model. They're not shoddy business practices by the way, I'm just trying to explain them. Let's just go over some of the key enhancements in FIFA 16.

FIFA's optimizations should push real-time physics to a new level. First of all, FIFA 16 supports more players and more cloud connections. When I played FIFA 16, I play FIFA 16 online and
