**The Power of Color** You can change the color scheme of the images in your portfolio with color adjustments. The color adjustment features allow you to quickly and effectively change the color balance of images and to correct for color problems. You can add, subtract, or create a color balance from a specific color or hue. You can then use the variable color tools, including the Hue/Saturation, Curves, and Graduated Filter tools to adjust brightness, contrast, and color and fine-tune your images. The Sharpen filter enables you to sharpen or soften your image. The Gaussian Blur filter allows you to add or remove blur to your image. The Burn/Dodge tools allow you to remove areas of a color in an image or to increase the overall level of a color to lighten it. The Sponge tool has similar capabilities as the Burn/Dodge tools, with a slight difference in that it allows you to add colors. The Levels tool lets you adjust the color balance and lighten or darken your image, and the Curves tool adjusts the brightness levels throughout your image. The Liquify tool allows you to create and edit the contours of your image. In addition, you can perform other photo editing techniques with this tool, such as creating effects, creating collages, or making objects move, change shape, and remove themselves from an image. Adobe also offers a one-stop product called Photoshop Elements. Elements is aimed at beginners and has many of the same features of Photoshop but at a fraction of the price. Elements allows you to download and edit over 500 free graphics from the Web in JPEG format. Finally, the popular GIMP (GNU Image Manipulation Program) is a cross-platform (Windows, Linux, Mac OS X) free software program that allows you to change the color balance, levels, sharpness, and lighting of your images. It also includes features to remove and apply layers of color.

BREWSTER, Ohio (CNN) – State officials on Tuesday announced they are working to contain an outbreak of norovirus at four Brewster County schools. The schools affected are: Brewster Elementary School Brewster Middle School Oakwood Elementary School West Shore Intermediate School The schools, as well as the Brewster High School, are all located on Hall Street in Brewster. The Brewster Central Health District says 42 people have been sickened so far, but because the outbreak has hit schools, that number is expected to rise. The health district says the number of cases likely will continue to grow. It says that, as of Monday morning, there have been 14 confirmed cases of norovirus. Another 42 cases are suspected at the time of publication. There have been seven cases of “food poisoning,” which are being treated as a different case type. The outbreak was first reported on Thursday. Dr. John Philbrick, the Brewster Central Health District’s medical director, says he has “hit the panic button.” “This is an outbreak of which we have to get ahead of it.” Philbrick said the people who got sick are usually the same age as the students. Not everyone who is infected with norovirus experiences symptoms. “Some people have no symptoms at all,” Philbrick said. Symptoms include nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and fever. The Brewster Central Health District says the best way to prevent becoming sick is to use proper hygiene. They say wiping down doorknobs, countertops, touch surfaces and other

Q: Reading sqlite database from another application So I have a database that I saved locally on the users system. I created a new application, and I'm trying to figure out how I can read from the database of the current user. So lets say I have to new app, called ApplicationA. ApplicationA app is located on the hard drive of the user, and looks like this: and I have to new app, called ApplicationB. And ApplicationB is located on the hard drive of the user. What I want to do is have an "Invoke" in applicationB that calls a stored procedure that opens the database and reads from it. How can I do this? A: You can't really do this with built-in SQLite functions. You can however query a SQLite database stored on the database file system - which usually means the path is in $HOME/.local/ or $HOME/.config/ Q: Is there any way to configure the hsl color with two float values? Is there any way to configure the hsl color with two float values? for example : Bla bla A: No, there isn't; the value of HSL(a,b,c) is HSL(a, b, 1) plus some amount of red. CSS3 provides a format that allows you to put a numerical value in, but its syntax is still a bit quirky. In a case like this, where you really do want to get two values rather than a color, it's probably easiest to use two colors, and create a "grid" by choosing one half of your design and coloring it, then using Photoshop to place a "grid" texture on the other half of the design. Q: How to stop a button pressed Here is my code @IBAction func actionOne(sender: AnyObject) { break1() } I dont want to run the break1() function again, I want to override the function and just stop that function from running. is there a way to do it? A: The short answer is that you can't stop a button press programmatically. This is also
