The video starts with an overhead overview of our project. It is a 26 HVAC Store on Wheels (SOW), and in this case a water wall was installed inside it. This was a cold weather project that could have been performed during summer. These method are named Reverse osmosis, Membrane and Plate Heat Exchanger. A more in-depth version of this video can be found here: A homeowner asked the following question: "I live in a rental property where the heat is being provided by a forced air system of heat. I am looking to upgrade to a hydronic system, but because the rental property is condo-based, care should be taken to locate the new heat loop in such a way as to avoid disturbing the other tenants. I was thinking of locating it under the hallway carpet, but then that means removing the carpet. Does anyone have any experience with this and any tricks to avoid disturbing the other tenants?" This is a short video that shows how I mounted a ZWG108D, two AQW140 Inverter Refrigerant Pumps and two Melex SE1000 solid-state fan control valves. Enjoy! How to protect against a cybersquatter website stealing customer information? A: Websites that are similar to yours are very common. If your clients are businesses, they may have a website made by another company, and these websites may be set up to look just like yours. If it is a personal website, then it might be particularly complicated to set up another website to look like yours. The best way to protect your customer's personal data is to not allow access to it. If you store the data in a database, you could set it up so that your server application cannot accept requests to the database itself, only to the normal data provided by the application. If it is a company website, you can set up a standard account so that even the login page is different. Your login page should be different from any other company's login page so that it cannot be used on a non-company site. This is less secure, but would be enough for a single person, and is still better than the "we will take everything you put in, and sell it for a profit" approach. A further improvement would be to disable the ability to save information on the system, rather than removing it. A: Simply hit them with an IP ban. If they don't buy a new IP address they can no longer access your website. Q: How do I convert one column from a Dataset into a Tuple of the first value and an array of the second value? I have a Dataset. Let's say I want to extract every second line from it. This is how I'm trying to do it. let dataSet = Enumerator.ofSeqDataset(dataset).flatMap(DS.map(Dataset.fromSeq)) This is what

In the 1950s, the Army Air Corps discovered that the Mooney M20-A had a flaw in the manifold parts which could result in loss of pressure and fuel leakage in the front mounted cylinder. Because the chambers were water-cooled, any loss of pressure or leakage could potentially cause engine failure. In this paper, we describe a technique that is used to find an optimal manifold configuration and attach position using modern engineering analysis. The technique has been used to analyze a manifold and a manifold-to-cyl
