Using such data, artificial intelligence (AI) systems will simulate thousands of plays per second, allowing the game engine to dynamically react in real-time to decisions made by the player. This allows the developers to create a completely new standard in terms of speed, control and freedom of movement. In addition, players will be able to perfectly replicate their own footwork, body movements and ball control. With the new motion capture technology, the developers have also introduced a new running animation system, which creates more realistic running and strafing animations than FIFA 13. The new system will also allow players to take better control of their dribble and run, which will make defenders much less effective at defending against players with the ball, and attackers far more mobile and able to exploit better defensive options. Speed of Play No longer will FIFA players have to watch the small white hand in the corner of the screen. It will be possible for players to actually see the space behind the player they are supposed to pass to, and be able to react on the run. The artificial intelligence (AI) engine will also have the ability to create the correct coverage for the player on the receiving end. FIFA 22 will also have the ability for gamers to directly influence the AI of opponent players by supplying them with the right type of information. For example, if an opposition player is marking you, the gamer will know this and will send you the right type of position by calling out instructions, with the aim being to inspire your teammate into doing something that will help the team. The new A.I. system will also improve the ability of players to communicate with their team-mates, as the game engine will listen to the various types of input and change accordingly. For example, calling for a teammate to shoot or pass the ball will activate the relevant A.I. system, and the new application will change in response to how the gamer plays the game. New Player Animation System For FIFA 22, the developers have been able to create a new running animation system, which will animate players' movements more realistically. This system will also allow players to better take advantage of space during runs. FIFA 22 will have a more realistic and fluent animation system, which will improve the player's control and feel. The motion capture technology will be used to simulate players' body movements, and then a new animation system will provide a more fluid action when players are running, jumping and performing Related Art Statement In recent years, as a semiconductor integrated circuit is developed into higher performance and compact in scale, a technology of forming an extremely fine contact hole or the like in an interlayer insulating film has been desired. In case of forming a fine contact hole, it is proposed to form the contact hole by using a method called dry etching of anisotropic etching, as disclosed in, for example, Japanese Patent laid-Open No. 3-127973. Further, it is proposed to form a hole by using a plasma etching method which can be applied also to anisotropic etching, as disclosed in, for example, Japanese Patent Laid-Open No. 4-105933. The dry etching of anisotropic etching as disclosed in the Japanese Patent Laid-Open No. 3-127973 has the advantage that a high selection ratio in the etching can be attained.
