Fireworks are fun. They can be an enjoyable and unique way to enjoy your Fourth of July celebrations, but, like many other celebratory events, they can put a serious financial strain on your budget. You may be able to save yourself some cash this year by planning ahead and finding ways to save money on your fireworks, from the store to the night of the celebration. In order to save some money on the cost of fireworks, you'll need to know some things that can help you to save on fireworks, including buying smart. It may cost a little more to buy a few inexpensive fireworks, but it can help to plan ahead. Sometimes you can buy a pack of cheap fireworks in bulk, saving money on the individual packs. You can also buy fewer fireworks, making your total investment go a little farther. You can also consider buying them at a discount, meaning you can buy a lot of fireworks at one time for less than if you went to a store to buy them one at a time. You can save money on your fireworks, but you'll need to be a smart buyer. You'll want to be sure to get fireworks that are appropriate for your age and that you will use safely. You'll also want to be sure to keep a close eye on the news in case of unplanned and dangerous fireworks in your area. You should also be sure to check carefully the fireworks laws in your area. Read carefully the product descriptions of fireworks. Also, most stores won't want you to buy fireworks that include caps, so be sure to avoid those as well. Tips for Saving Money on Fireworks Some things can help you to save on fireworks. You can start by opting for fireworks that are safe. Regularly check the news for safety tips for fireworks and firework safety laws. Be sure to check fireworks laws in your area. Look carefully at the product descriptions and warnings before making your purchase. You'll also want to watch your spending on fireworks. Set a budget and stick to it. Avoid setting a budget to spend too much money, and try to have fun while you're celebrating your Fourth of July. You may want to try buying your fireworks in bulk or from a manufacturer, if they are available. Be sure to check the price, availability and proper fireworks laws in your area before you buy fireworks,

Q: How to pass @ModelAttribute properties to JSP when Spring MVC redirects to JSP I have a @Controller which has a @ModelAttribute attribute in it. This attribute is present in the jsp, and contains some values. I have a ViewResolver bean in my Spring app which is used to pass the values of the @ModelAttribute into the model for the JSP from which the @Controller is redirecting to. I am performing this redirect as follows: @RequestMapping(value="/resultpage.jsp", method=RequestMethod.POST) public String redirectToResultPage(Model model) { model.addAttribute("parameters", ParametersUtil.getParamsFromBean()); return "resultpage"; } And, in my view resolver, I am populating a model attribute in my model and getting it in the JSP as follows: @Override protected ModelAndView resolveViewName(HttpServletRequest request, HttpServletResponse response, Object view, String viewName, Model model, ViewContext viewContext) throws Exception { ModelAndView mav = super.resolveViewName(request, response, view, viewName, model, viewContext); ... model.addAttribute("parameters", parameters); return mav; } This approach works fine, but I have run into a problem with it. In the ViewResolver, I see the parameter I added in model.addAttribute(), but they are displayed in the JSP as empty Strings or Boolean objects. Therefore, when I do: I get: And if I try to get the parameter in the JSP using model.get("parameter") I get an exception. I am using Spring 3.2.3, and using the JSP tag libs. A: I don't think you should be running with the JSP tag libs. It is using the Servlet API. As you can see from
