TSConverter is a standalone product that has been designed for doing what it does best, namely converting TS to DVR-MS, TP, MPG and TS. Firstly, it can be used for converting TS files to DVR-MS (with a bitrate of up to 23 Mb/s, 1080p, 50m, 60 Hz, and 720p, 60m, 50 Hz), as well as into TS, TP or MPG (with bitrate of up to 50 Mb/s, 1080p, 50m, 60 Hz, and 720p, 50m, 60 Hz respectively). Secondly, it is capable of converting TS clips into either a scene based index, a video based index, a multi-channel audio based index, or index based on a specific frame (keyframe). Thirdly, it is also able to use a demuxer to demultiplex TS files into raw video and raw audio streams. TSConverter Requirements: TSConverter is the perfect software that will do all of these as stated, but the biggest feature that makes it a unique software is that it does all of these with ease and without losing quality. The biggest drawback of this software is that it requires some pretty powerful hardware to give it a run, but they are generally reasonably priced. With these features, TSConverter is the software that will perform well in terms of conversion and with a price starting at $49 for a license for a standard version. Though it's not the cheapest software on the market, the price is good enough to make it worth it if you convert a lot of videos per day. The one major downside of this software is that it doesn't run on smartphones yet. This could be an inconvenience because of the fact that conversion might get hindered with long files, but an easy workaround is to use a USB flash drive to do the conversion. Even though the price of this software is higher than others, the quality of the resulting TS file is second to none. Because this software is created specifically to convert TS to the DVR-MS format, the quality is well worth the price.
