The relative clauses are usually compared with the relative pronouns re, nere, and nu (I cannot do it, it is not good, she is not coming). .. The infinitives are usually compared with the past participle of the main verb (I have done it, he has said it, she has known it, etc.). Since the verb is the same in the subordinate and main clause (obit și-a petrecut de minune o jumatate de viață la Dediu Științific) this is an example of absolute clause construction. . Conjunctions are usually compared with copulative verbs (conduc, nu fac, nu-i dau, etc.). Conjunctivum is a word used to describe the particles that make up a conjunction. The demonstrative pronoun in Romanian is unlike most other European languages: it is not used to indicate quantity, as in English "This is a book". Dug-out base Dug-out baza de date or dugout baza de date, is a type of base of a building found mostly in undeveloped areas (especially forest areas) where the soil is poor, hard to dig and has a less supportive structure. As such, a dugout building is usually uninsulated, with the walls constructed from wood and cement. It is a large primitive home or a shelter for a hunting or fishing camp.
