I was wondering if anybody can tell me which OS cert BitBucket server uses as its OS cert. Background: I'd like to use BitBucket as a GIT repository. When I select the option to use HTTPS with BitBucket and generate a new certificate, I get the option to ask for the names to add to the certificate with the option of BitBucket Server or BitBucket. I want to use BitBucket Server. I realize that I could just manually write the names, but I'd like to know which ones to add as the OS

So I work for a social network that is targeted towards young(er) people. But our website has a few things that are hard to understand, and almost impossible to use, for people who are older. For example, we have a code for adding friends. We literally ask the user to copy and paste a URL to a computer, then the computer sends this URL to the website. That's in the "friends" section. Since elderly people need hand/arm movement they can't copy and paste, and sending this URL to their computer is a poor work around. What would be the best way to make something that is fully functional and usable by elderly people? Edit I live in Norway. The youngest person in my immediate family (including me) is 43. The internet is pretty popular here. 648931e174

Recent studies have supported the hypothesis that vitamin D deficiency plays an important role in the etiopathogenesis of bone loss in patients with rheumatoid arthritis (RA). The aim of this study was to investigate the effect of vitamin D and calcium supplements on bone mineral density (BMD) in patients with RA. Thirty RA patients and 30 healthy women who served as the control group were enrolled in the study. The mean age of patients was 47 ± 12.6 years, and the mean disease duration was 28 ± 10.4 months. All participants underwent dual-energy X-ray absorptiometry of the lumbar spine (LSBMD), L1-L4 BMD of the hip (HBMD), and femoral neck BMD of the hip (FNBMD) before and 6 months after supplementation with a combination of 4000 IU/d vitamin D3 and 500 mg/d calcium supplements. Significant differences were found in LSBMD, HBMD, and FNBMD in patients and controls at baseline (p 0.05). Six months after supplementation, the mean of all BMD measurements were significantly improved in both groups (p 0.05). Oral supplementation with a combination of vitamin D and calcium resulted in significant improvement in BMD in patients with RA. 26th only as explained above, the court found that the child was
