Vermont's top education official declared herself an "LGBTQ ally" during testimony in a case that could make the state the first in the nation to outlaw discrimination against transgender people. In remarks Wednesday before the House judiciary committee in Montpelier, Superintendent of Public Instruction Ellen Granas said she opposed the ban. "We should not create a situation where transgender students or employees have to face discrimination," she said. "That is wrong, and we will fight against it in the courts." The introduction of the bill last week came on the heels of pressure by Gov. Phil Scott and House Speaker Mitzi Johnson to ban the practice in employment, housing, and public accommodations, including schools and day cares. The Senate soon will take up the issue. The Senate State Government Committee recently heard testimony in favor of the law, and will take up the bill in the coming weeks. The bill targets "sexual orientation and gender identity" in employment and housing and bans discrimination against transgender people in public accommodations. Local laws can be added to the civil rights law. Senate Committee on State Government Chairwoman Linda Valentino-DeVries, R-West Hartford, and co-sponsor Senator Chris Pearson, D-Waterbury, have said a statewide ban is needed to override local laws that could already be on the books. "When we talk about discrimination, we are talking about whether a person who is a woman, who is a man, who is transgender, has the ability to be treated fairly in the workplace," Valentino-DeVries said last week. If the bill passes in both chambers of the legislature, it would go to Scott for his signature. The Republican governor has not said how he will act, but has not come out against it. "Transgender people are children in many ways," Johnson said last week. "They are children who require sensitivity and care. They are children who deserve the opportunity to be treated with respect and dignity." "These children need to be treated as equals," she added. "They need to be treated with sensitivity and understanding. They don't need to be discriminated against." The law could make Vermont the first state to outlaw discrimination against transgender people. Currently, there is no legal definition of what sex is. State law was amended in 2011 to reflect the fact that transgender people are people of the sex they identify with. The issue has been before the Human Rights Commission on two

What's New in the Adobe Photoshop CC 2015 Version 18?

The invention relates to a method for analyzing a test sample for the presence of a chemical or biochemical substance. For analyzing a test sample with the aid of chemiluminescence, chemiluminescent reagents are used. A test sample is introduced into a reaction chamber, for example through a reaction cuvette. The reagent, which is pre-dosed in the reaction cuvette in a specific amount, is dispersed in the sample and reacted with the sample in the reaction chamber. As a result, chemiluminescence occurs. The intensity of the chemiluminescence is measured by a detector. Chemiluminescent reagents are, for example, luminol, luminol derivatives, arylazluminol derivatives, acridinium esters, ruthenium complexes, phthalocyanines, rhodamines, etc. However, in the detection of the chemiluminescence, the amount and the quality of the chemiluminescent reagent are essential for the quality of the measurements. In the use of known reagents, those reagents which allow the lowest detection limits can be used only to a minor extent. An object of the invention is to provide a method for analyzing a test sample for the presence of a chemical or biochemical substance in the test sample, in which the test sample can be analyzed at low reagent requirements. This object is achieved by a method for analyzing a test sample for the presence of a chemical or biochemical substance, including dispersing a test sample and a chemiluminescent reagent in a reaction chamber, reacting the test sample with the chemiluminescent reagent, with a shutter for a predetermined period, optionally adjusting the intensity of the chemiluminescent light, and determining the signal intensity for the shutter adjusted intensity of the chemiluminescent light. Accordingly, the invention provides a method for analyzing a test sample for the presence of a chemical or biochemical substance with the aid of a chemiluminescent reagent, in which a test sample and a chemiluminescent reagent are introduced into a reaction chamber, and the chemiluminescence, which is caused by the reaction of the reagent with the test sample, is measured by varying the intensity of the chemiluminescent light. By using a shutter device, it is possible to change the intensity of the light beam emitted from a light source in the reaction chamber, to be precise,
