DOWNLOADÂ .Q: Powershell Else statement not working when using static class I'm working with the SharePoint Framework. I am building a static class that returns a list of available configuration options. Then I loop through that list and a bunch of different checkboxes are built dynamically based on if a value is true or false. If I access the checkboxes like a normal block like this: if ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } else { "Value is False" } The if statement works just fine if ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } elseif ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } elseif ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } It's almost like what if exists in java. I expected the first if statement to display the value and the rest of them to not run at all. However it shows all the results on the UI if ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } else if ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } else if ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } elseif ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } elseif ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } } elseif ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } elseif ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } } elseif ($Checkbox.Checked) { "Value is True" } }
