a.Q: How to perform fast one hot encoding with tensorflow? I'm searching for a fast way to one hot encode a tensor.

Basically I have a tensor of shape (samples, features) and I need a vector of shape (samples, output_vocab_size). If I look at the options for one_hot, they seem to be taking about a second to perform the actual operation (for a very small dataset like sentences). A: Tensorflow has a built-in one_hot option that does precisely that. I am guessing you are using a GPU? If so, that is why it is taking so long, you are doing the one_hot() operation and then copying all the values into the GPU memory. Below is an example showing a 2D tensor that needs to be converted to 2D one hot tensor.

import tensorflow as tf
t = tf.constant([[1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8],
