luimagazinepdffreedownload(const char *url, char *name) synopsis #include int luimagazinepdffreedownload(const char *url, char *name); description the luimagazinepdffreedownload() function downloads the specified image to a temporary file. when it finishes, the temporary file is removed and the resulting image is placed in the c string 'name'. if a is not specified, the current working directory is used. the memory used by the temporary file is not freed. luimagazinepdffreedownload() returns 1 if there was an error in the download, 0 otherwise. the luimagazinepdffreedownload() function is automatically called by the luasql module when data is needed from the database. a memory error can occur when the opt_png_temp_dir option is set. this may happen when the php script runs out of memory. this option is automatically turned off in newer versions of the php web server. opt_png_tmp_dir can be changed to something else, for example a symbolic link in a directory where the current user has permission to write. this is probably the best option for most cases. when downloading a file as a png image, the decoded data is returned as a byte array. the size of this array is specified in the opt_png_tmp_limit option. the decoded data is then placed in the string name. if a opt_png_tmp_dir is not specified, the memory usage of the image is not limited. the size of the data in name is not limited. if a opt_png_tmp_dir is specified, the size of the data in name is limited to the amount of memory that is available. if the limit is exceeded, the php script will generate an error and return 1. notes the luimagazinepdffreedownload() function is automatically called by the luasql module when data is needed from the database. examples download the image of the given url and name it 'image.png': #include
