Washington State to improve indoor air quality in schools will be tested in a city school district in San Diego. A small, nearly invisible company called Halo Energy Solutions of Seattle recently worked with the Lighthouse School District in Washington State to come up with an affordable way to cut down on an outdoor pollutant called ozone, which can be produced by power plants and in other ways. The solution: Create a layer of ozone-fighting air with a special plasma fogger. The first step for the district was to test the fogger.
“You’d have to be under a bridge
